

SAY SAN DIEGO 2023 ANNUAL REPORT HIGHLIGHTS

GENERATING AFFORDABLE, ACCESSIBLE, HIGH-QUALITY CHILDCARE

Rebuilding childcare and extended care for working parents following the COVID-19 crisis was an ongoing focus for SAY San Diego and its partners during the 2023 fiscal year.

Over 200 4 to 5 year-olds received enhanced and unique developmentally tailored before and after school programming.

"When I learn about science and do research, it makes me feel smarter and that I can be anything I want to be. Maybe I will invent a new jet in the future!" - Aria, STEAM Student* more girls participated in SAY San Diego's "STEAM" programming than in previous years.

130%

56

new staff members onboarded in various childcare positions, ensuring more childcare spots for families in need.

SERVING AS A COMMUNITY-CENTERED PARTNER

300+

hard-to-reach pre-teens, teenagers, and young adults in detention centers, schools, and communities were engaged in trauma-informed, restorative services.

"Project AWARE made me able to have healthier relationships with my family and friends."

- Marcus*, Youth Participant

100+

diverse residents engaged in virtual town halls and 72 youth participated in focus groups, to inform the City of San Diego Child and Youth Master Plan.

"The importance of creating a youth-driven plan cannot be overstated. The leadership of...staff and interns... ensured that youth voices are meaningfully reflected and integrated in the plan."

- Andy Pendoley, Project Partner

HEADING OFF THE FENTANYL CRISIS

OVER 4,800

lifesaving Narcan® (naloxone) kits were distributed.

"It is so important that...the people in our communities become more aware of the dangers [fentanyl] poses to the public. It's not just certain communities where we see these tragic deaths and it's not limited to certain demographics. Every community throughout San Diego has had far too many people die from this drug and I sincerely feel that by spreading the word, you will save lives. ...keep up the great work."

- Police Officer/Training Attendee

Every day, SAY San Diego exemplifies the healing power of authentic, community-connected work, based on thoughtful, inclusive, and safe relationships.

AMPLIFYING THE HEALING POWER OF RELATIONSHIPS

150+

of our neighbors were supported to access resources for housing stability and improved well-being.

2800

students benefited from healthy, free snacks from the Lincoln High School On-the-Go Food Pantry.

"I was absolutely on the verge of being homeless...[and] I couldn't have gotten this place without that help. When you don't have housing, everything turns into a cascade effect. You can't manage everything and stay healthy."

- Annie, Program Participant
